U.S. COURT OF FEDERAL CLAIMS

Denard-Darnell: Neal, Adelanto, CA, pro se.

ORDER

The plaintiff, Denard-Darnell: Neal, filed a pro se, "PLAINTIFF REQUEST FOR DAMAGES FROM UNITED STATES FOR INJURIES SUFFER AT THE HANDS OF

<sup>1</sup> Plaintiff's complaint lists as "Respondent" the United States of America and the Federal Bureau of Prisons, pursuant to Rule 10(a) of the Rules of the United States Court of Federal Claims (RCFC) 10(a), however, all claims in the United States Court of Federal Claims must have "the United States designated as the party defendant." RCFC 10(a); see also 28 U.S.C § 1491(a)(1) (2012). The United States Supreme Court has indicated, for suits filed in the United States Court of Federal Claims and its predecessors, "if the relief sought is against others than the United States the suit as to them must be ignored as beyond the jurisdiction of the court." United States v. Sherwood, 312 U.S. 584, 588 (1941) (citation omitted); see also Kurt v. United States, 103 Fed. Cl. 384, 386 (2012). Stated differently, "the only proper defendant for any matter before this court is the United States, not its officers, nor any other individual." Stephenson v. United States, 58 Fed. Cl. 186, 190 (2003); see also United States v. Sherwood, 312 U.S. at 588; May v. United States, 80 Fed. Cl. 442, 444 ("Jurisdiction, then, is limited to suits against the United States."), aff'd, 293 F. App'x 775 (Fed. Cir. 2008). It is, therefore, well-established that this court does not have jurisdiction to hear any claims against defendants other than the United States. The court notes that in the caption plaintiff lists himself as: "Ex Parte, Denard-Darnell: Neal, Secured Party/Creditor, Holder-In-Due-Course, Recorder Owner, Ex Rel., Plaintiff[, ]". (bracket in original).

UNITED STATES AND ITS AGENTS VIA ITS AGENTS OR OMISSIONS. . ."<sup>2</sup> Plaintiff's complaint begins: "Comes now, Tort Claimant Denard-Darnell: Neal, herein proceeding pro se, via Special Visitation, submit these pleadings to the UNITED STATES COURT OF FEDERAL CLAIMS, to hear and adjudicate this instant action." In the "facts for complaint for damages" portion of his complaint, plaintiff states:

Tort Claimant herein submits and files this action for damages under necessity, as a matter of Right, and such claim for damages arise out of Private Injuries, Moral Wrongs, Constitutional Misapplication of Statute, Violation of "Due Process of Law", Violation of "Equal Protection of the Law", "Fraud and Dishonor", "Violation of Human Rights", "Conspiracy Against The Right To Have Access To The Court Via Denial of Access To The Law Library; Violation of Human Rights In The Denial of Adequate Living Space Pursuant to 18 U.S.C. § 241-Conspiracy Against Rights; Deprivation of Rights Under Color of Law-18 U.S.C. § 242; Failure To Prevent or Correct-42 U.S.C. § 1986.

Plaintiff takes issue with his access to the prison law library at the Victorville federal prison in Victorville, California. Plaintiff states:

On or about April 29, 2015, Ms. Gutierrez Education Tech/Teacher, refuse to perform her fiduciary duty in allowing Tort Claimant access to the law library pursuant to program statement 1315.07, which require the Warden to provide Tort Claimant with the necessary time needed to complete legal work. Ms. Gutierrez is well aware that Tort Claimant has a memo that authorized Tort Claimant to attend the law library for extra hours. In refusing to perform her fiduciary duty which require Ms. Gutierrez to come to what is known as the programs gate to provide Tort Claimant with access to the law library as authorized by the memo. Upon Ms. Gutierrez not showing up Tort Claimant encounter Chaplain Richards who in an attempt to assist Tort Claimant Chaplain Richards call Ms. Gutierrez on the radio and made Ms. Gutierrez aware that inmates including but not limited to Tort Claimant and that Tort Claimant was waiting for her at the program gate. Ms. Gutierrez refuse to come to the program gate to allow access to the law library, thereby refusing to perform her fiduciary duty as proscribed by law.

For the relief sought, the complaint states: "Tort Claimant seek the immediate pay of the tort claim amount of $525,000.00."

The court recognizes that plaintiff is proceeding pro se, without the assistance of counsel. When determining whether a complaint filed by a pro se plaintiff is sufficient to invoke review by a court, pro se plaintiffs are entitled to liberal construction of their pleadings. See Haines v. Kerner, 404 U.S. 519, 520-21 (requiring that allegations Pursuant to the RCFC and the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure, a plaintiff need only state in the complaint “a short and plain statement of the grounds for the court’s jurisdiction,” and “a short and plain statement of the claim showing that the pleader is entitled to relief.” RCFC 8(a)(1), (2) (2015); Fed. Iqbal, “[a] pleading that offers ‘labels and conclusions’ or ‘a formulaic recitation of the elements of a cause of action will not do.’ [Bell Atl. Corp. v. Twombly,] 550 U.S. at 555. Nor does a complaint suffice if it tenders 'naked assertion[s]' devoid of 'further factual enhancement.'" Ashcroft v. Iqbal, 556 U.S. at 678 (quoting Bell Atl. Corp. v. Twombly, 550 U.S. at 555).

The Tucker Act grants jurisdiction to this court as follows:

The United States Court of Federal Claims shall have jurisdiction to render judgment upon any claim against the United States founded either upon the Constitution, or any Act of Congress or any regulation of an executive department, or upon any express or implied contract with the United States, or for liquidated or unliquidated damages in cases not sounding in tort.

28 U.S.C. § 1491(a)(1) (emphasis added). As interpreted by the United States Supreme Court, the Tucker Act waives sovereign immunity to allow jurisdiction over claims against the United States (1) founded on an express or implied contract with the United States, (2) seeking a refund from a prior payment made to the government, or (3) based on federal constitutional, statutory, or regulatory law mandating compensation by the federal government for damages sustained. See United States v. Navajo Nation, 556 U.S. 287, 289–90 (2009); United States v. Mitchell, 463 U.S. 206, 216 (1983); see also Greenlee Cnty., Ariz. v. United States, 487 F.3d 871, 875 (Fed. Cir.), reh'g and reh'g en banc denied (Fed. Cir. 2007), cert. denied, 552 U.S. 1142 (2008); Palmer v. United States, 168 F.3d 1310, 1314 (Fed. Cir. 1999).

Throughout his complaint, plaintiff refers to himself as "the Tort Claimant," and "Tort Claimant Denard-Darnell: Neal," and the defendant as "Tort Feasor(s)" and "Tort Feasor(s)-United States," and for the relief sought in this case, plaintiff requests "the immediate pay of the tort claim amount of $525,000.00." To the extent "tort claimant" brings tort claims related to his use of the law library, this court does not possess jurisdiction over claims that sound in tort. See 28 U.S.C. § 1491(a) ("The United States Court of Federal Claims shall have jurisdiction to render judgment upon any claim against the United States founded either upon the Constitution, or any Act of Congress or any regulation of an executive department, or upon any express or implied contract with the United States, or for liquidated or unliquidated damages in cases not sounding in tort."); see also Keene Corp. v. United States, 508 U.S. 200, 214 (1993); Rick's Mushroom Serv., Inc. v. United States, 521 F.3d at 1343; Alves v. United States, 133 F.3d 1454, 1459 (Fed. Cir. 1998); Brown v. United States, 105 F.3d 621, 623 (Fed. Cir.), reh'g denied (Fed. Cir. 1997); Golden Pac. Bancorp v. United States, 15 F.3d 1066, 1070 n.8 (Fed. Cir.), reh'g denied, en banc suggestion declined (Fed. Cir.), cert. denied, 513 U.S. 961 (1994); Hampel v. United States, 97 Fed. Cl. 235, 238, aff'd, 429 F. App'x 995 (Fed. Cir. 2011), cert. denied, 132 S. Ct. 1105 (2012); Woodson v. United States, 89 Fed. Cl. 640, 650 (2009); McCullough v. United States, 76 Fed. Cl. 1, 3 (2006), appeal dismissed, 236 F. App'x 615 (Fed. Cir.), reh'g denied (Fed. Cir.), cert. denied, 552 U.S. 1050 (2007); Agee v. United States, 72 Fed. Cl. 284, 290 (2006); Zhengxing v. United States, 71 Fed. Cl. 732, 739, aff'd, 204 F. App'x 885 (Fed. Cir.), reh'g denied (Fed. Cir. 2006). Therefore, to the extent any of plaintiff's claims sound in tort, those claims must be dismissed.

As noted above, in his complaint, plaintiff states:

Tort Claimant herein submits and files this action for damages under necessity, as a matter of Right, and such claim for damages arise out of Private Injuries, Moral Wrongs, Constitutional Misapplication of Statute, Violation of "Due Process of Law", Violation of "Equal Protection of the Law", "Fraud and Dishonor", "Violation of Human Rights", "Conspiracy Against The Right To Have Access To The Court Via Denial of Access To The Law Library; Violation of Human Rights In The Denial of Adequate Living Space Pursuant to 18 U.S.C. § 241-Conspiracy Against Rights; Deprivation of Rights Under Color of Law-18 U.S.C. § 242; Failure To Prevent or Correct-42 U.S.C. § 1986.

From the complaint, it appears that plaintiff asserts violations of his constitutional rights under the Fifth, Sixth, and Fourteenth Amendments to the United States Constitution. It is well established that the Due Process clauses of both the Fifth and Fourteenth Amendments do not mandate the payment of money, and, thus, do not provide a cause of action under the Tucker Act." For plaintiff's claims for due process under the Fifth and Fourteenth Amendments, the United States Court of Appeals for the Federal Circuit has held that this court does not possess jurisdiction to consider claims arising under the Due Process Clauses of the Fifth and Fourteenth Amendments. See Crocker v. United States, 125 F.3d 1475, 1476 (Fed. Cir. 1997) (citing LeBlanc v. United States, 50 F.3d 1025, 1028 (Fed. Cir. 1995)) (no jurisdiction over a due process violation under the Fifth and Fourteenth Amendments); see also Smith v. United States, 709 F.3d 1114, 1116 (Fed. Cir.) ("The law is well settled that the Due Process clauses of both the Fifth and Fourteenth Amendments do not mandate the payment of money and thus do not provide a cause of action under the Tucker Act." (citing LeBlanc v. United States, 50 F.3d at 1028), cert. denied, 134 S. Ct. 259 (2013)); In re United States, 463 F.3d 1328, 1335 n.5 (Fed. Cir.) ("[B]ecause the Due Process Clause is not money-mandating, it may not provide the basis for jurisdiction under the Tucker Act."), reh'g and reh'g en banc denied (Fed. Cir. 2006), cert. denied sub nom. Scholl v. United States, 552 U.S. 940 (2007); Acadia Tech., Inc. & Global Win Tech., Ltd. v. United States, 458 F.3d 1327, 1334 (Fed. Cir. 2006); Collins v. United States, 67 F.3d 284, 288 (Fed. Cir.) ("[T]he due process clause does not obligate the government to pay money damages."), reh'g denied (Fed. Cir. 1995); Mullenberg v. United States, 857 F.2d 770, 773 (Fed. Cir. 1988) (finding that the Due Process clauses "do not trigger Tucker Act jurisdiction in the courts"); Murray v. United States, 817 F.2d 1580, 1583 (Fed. Cir. 1987) (noting that the Fifth Amendment Due Process clause does not include language mandating the payment of money damages); Harper v. United States, 104 Fed. Cl. 287, 291 n.5 (2012); Hampel v. United States, 97 Fed. Cl. at 238; McCullough v. United States, 76 Fed. Cl. at 4 ("[N]either the Fifth Amendment Due Process Clause . . . nor the Privileges and Immunities Clause provides a basis for jurisdiction in this court because the Fifth Amendment is not a source that mandates the payment of money to plaintiff."). Due process claims "must be heard in District Court." Kam-Almaz v. United States, 96 Fed. Cl. 84, 89 (2011) (citing Acadia Tech., Inc. & Global Win Tech., Ltd. v. United States, 458 F.3d at 1334), aff'd, 682 F.3d 1364 (Fed. Cir. 2012); see also Hampel v. United States, 97 Fed. Cl. at 238. Therefore, to the extent that plaintiff is attempting to allege Due Process violations, no such cause of action can be brought in this court.

To the extent that plaintiff raises claims under the Equal Protection Clause of the Fourteenth Amendment, those claims also do not mandate the payment of money by the federal government and, therefore, fall outside the jurisdiction of the United States Court of Federal Claims. See LeBlanc v. United States, 50 F.3d at 1028 (A claim under the Equal Protection Clause of the Fourteenth Amendment is not sufficient for jurisdiction in the United States Court of Federal Claims because it does not “mandate payment of money by the government.” (citing Carruth v. United States, 224 Ct. Cl. 422, 445 (1980))); Potter v. United States, 108 Fed. Cl. 544, 548 (2013) (finding that “this Court lacks jurisdiction over violations under the Due Process Clauses of the Fifth and Fourteenth Amendments . . . because they do not mandate payment of money by the government.”) (internal citations omitted) (modifications in original); Warren v. United States, 106 Fed. Cl. 507, 511 (2012) (holding that, since the “Fourteenth Amendment guarantee of equal protection” is not money mandating, “[a]ccordingly, the court lacks jurisdiction over these claims.”); Pleasant-Bey v. United States, 99 Fed. Cl. 363, 367 (2011) appeal dismissed, 464 F. App’x 879 (Fed. Cir. 2012) (“However, this court does not have jurisdiction over claims based on either the Thirteenth Amendment or Fourteenth Amendment because neither mandates the payment of money damages.”).

In addition, plaintiff alleges “Tort Claimant Right to have access to the law library is founded within the Sixth Amendment.” Insofar as plaintiff’s claims allege a violation of his rights under the Sixth Amendment to the United States Constitution, the Sixth Amendment is not money-mandating and, therefore, jurisdiction to review these claims does not lie in this court. See Dupre v. United States, 229 Ct. Cl. 706, 706 (1981) (“[T]he fourth and sixth amendments do not in themselves obligate the United States to pay money damages; and, therefore, we have no jurisdiction over such claims.”); Turpin v. United States, 119 Fed. Cl. 704, 707 (2015) (“To the extent that Ms. Turpin’s complaint brings constitutional challenges under the Due Process Clause and the Sixth Amendment, the Court cannot hear such claims because neither of these constitutional provisions is a money-mandating source.”); Gable v. United States, 106 Fed. Cl. 294, 298 (2012) (“[T]he United States Court of Federal Claims does not have jurisdiction to adjudicate the alleged violations of Plaintiff’s Sixth Amendment rights, because that constitutional provision is not money-mandating.”); Treece v. United States, 96 Fed. Cl. 226, 231 (2010) (citing Milas v. United States, 42 Fed. Cl. 704, 710 (finding that the Sixth Amendment is not money-mandating), aff’d, 217 F.3d 854 (Fed. Cir. 1999)); Smith v. United States, 51 Fed. Cl. 36, 38 (2001) (internal citations omitted) (finding that the Court of Federal Claims lacks jurisdiction over Sixth Amendment ineffective assistance of counsel claims), aff’d, 36 F. App’x 444 (Fed. Cir.), reh’g denied (Fed. Cir.), cert. denied, 537 U.S. 1010 (2002). As all of plaintiff’s claims are outside the jurisdiction of the court, plaintiff’s claims are dismissed.

Although the court dismisses plaintiff’s complaint, the court notes plaintiff failed to pay the filing fee or file an application to proceed in forma pauperis with his complaint. As a docket search reveals numerous cases filed by plaintiff in federal court, including some in forma pauperis, the court believes the failure to file was not a mere oversight. Therefore, before the Clerk's Office files another complaint by plaintiff, plaintiff shall include the filing fee or accompany the complaint with a completed application to proceed in forma pauperis, as well as a trust fund account statement if plaintiff is incarcerated at the time of filing.

For the foregoing reasons, plaintiff's complaint is DISMISSED. The Clerk of the Court shall enter JUDGMENT consistent with this Order.

IT IS SO ORDERED.
